

Example optimized routes for sport sailing

Private companies like Jenifer Clark's Gulfstream make charts of sea surface height. Eddies and swift moving currents are identified and mapped to to increase safety and economic return for recreational boating, transatlantic ship routing, cable laying, and oil exploration